Taxation and Education—No. 3.

Shall we diffuse intelligence through the medium of the taxing power? That is, shall we sustain free schools? It can hardly be necessary, it would seem, to offer a word on this subject. Did we know certainly that any one objected to this principle on a professedly substantial basis, we might and would urge many reasons in support of it. As it is, I shall say but little; for any objection founded merely in selfishness, or resting on any false notion of aristocracy—on the idea, for instance, that the young scions of upper-tendons would be degraded by seeking for knowledge at the common fountain, side by side with the children of the so-called middle and lower classes,—any objection of this character would be unworthy a moment's notice.

There is one view of our subject that should be carefully considered. Every taxpayer in the land is under a binding obligation to contribute to the support of the government under which he lives. There can be no dodging this responsibility. If money is required for the erection and management of jails, prisons, houses of refuge, etc., no objection is interposed—pecuniary aid is freely rendered in such cases. Now it is probably true, that if school houses and thoroughly qualified teachers were multiplied throughout the length and breadth of the land, there would not be so loud a call for money with which to build prisons and jails. It should be put to the common sense and the benevolent feeling of the taxpayers, whether it is not indeed better policy, and more accordant with the moral and religious sentiment of the human heart, to build and endow houses of prevention than houses of correction, for the one or the other we must have; and as we multiply the former, there will be less occasion for the latter.

It will be seen, of course, that my argument is based on the supposition that education will contribute to the promotion of moral goodness—to virtue, both in public and in private life. With the growth of the intellect the moral powers of the soul should keep pace. Physically, intellectually, and morally, should our children be educated. Means to this end should be provided by the state or by municipal regulation.—Let our schools be the nurseries of intelligence and virtue, and let them be free to all classes of the community.

Frequently, in our large towns and cities, vagrant children are to be met with.—Which is best—to pay largely for the evils which they will entail upon society,—or to educate, train or mature them, intellectually and morally, thus fitting them in a good degree to become worthy and useful men and women? But one answer could reasonably be given. All true and unselfish hearts would be a unit in this grand purpose of intellectual and moral culture. If there is any one thing of which Wisconsin as a state may feel justly proud, it is her glorious system of public instruction.

After years of reproach, anxiety and toil, we succeeded in this city in adopting an admirable system of free schools, providing for a thorough academic course. Our plan has worked well, and has been generally, perhaps it should say universally approved by our citizens. Shall it ever be sacrificed to cupidity and selfishness? I trust not. Let our public schools be suspended even for one year, and the evils resulting would be incalculable. Let the people look to this matter in sober earnest. If there can be retrenchment and reform in any particular, let us have them. But let no ruthless hand be put forth to paralyze or destroy the system itself. Should such an attempt be made, may the hand be suddenly stayed in its evil work—as suddenly as the hand of a city father was stayed recently in our common council, through his "sober second thought," induced by the potent fact that "two-thirds of the property holders of the city had remonstrated with him against reducing the school fund." Had he consulted the remaining third, he would have found them of like mind.

A MURDERER AT LARGE.—We publish in our advertising columns to-day the reward offered for the apprehension of "Lant" McComb for the murder of Laura Harvey and George Lawrence. There is also in this advertisement a minute description of the murderer. The remains of Lawrence were found in a ravine on the 28th of July, near Ottumwa, Iowa, where the murders were committed, and were fully identified. McComb, it appears, has been traced into this state, and it is more than probable that he is now secreted by some of the gang to which he belongs, and which are supposed to be located in various places throughout the northwest. It will be remembered that Mayberry, after he had murdered Alger, went immediately to old McComb's, near Rockford, where he had been harboring, and that this "Lant" McComb was a witness at the trial in this city. It was believed, at the time, that the McCombs were a part of the gang of horse-thieves and robbers which infested this region, and that Mayberry was exposed only because they feared to protect him. The recent double murder by "Lant" McComb confirms the suspicions which were then abroad in relation to him, and we hope every effort will be made to apprehend him and bring him to punishment.

For Springfield.—The price of tickets for the trip to Springfield and back to Janesville will be $6.00. For a package of fifty tickets the charge will be $5.00 each. Cars will leave Chicago for Springfield to-morrow evening at 8 o'clock. This will be a favorable opportunity for such as desire to participate in the great mass meeting at the home of old Abe, and we hope a large number will attend from this region.

THE COMING NOVELTY.—From every direction we hear of preparations being made, not only in Wisconsin, but in other states, for a large attendance at the National Horse Show and Ladies' Equestrian Fair, to be held in this city in September next. If the press is any indication of the disposition and interest of the public, we look for the largest crowd of people, on that occasion, ever assembled in the north-west. From its inception to the present time, these enterprising managers of the coming Fair have been busy in making ample arrangements for the accommodation of the expected assemblage. The Fair grounds are being refitted. The track is graded and now ready for use, and all other accompaniments essential to its perfect success, of this the first fair of its kind ever held in our state, will be brought into requisition. As the time approaches the interest in this national exhibition increases, and we confidently expect the fastest and finest horses of the land will be here, with the beauty and chivalry of the country, to grace the occasion.

ROCK RIVER ENGINE CO. No. 1.—The regular monthly meeting of this company will be held at their hall this evening, at 8 o'clock. By order of G. S. STRASBERGER, Foreman. S. POORN, Jr., Acting Secy.

WARM!—At 4 o'clock this afternoon the thermometer stood at 98° in the shade.—That's what we call some warm.

LIFE INSURANCE.—Those desiring this useful and cheap protection for their families, can secure it in our Wisconsin company. It has already become a state institution, having gained and proven among the best business men in all the principal towns in the state. It is no longer a matter of doubt that life insurance can be conducted as well in Wisconsin as in Connecticut or any other eastern state. While it demands that men should insure their lives, it also demands that they should keep their money for investment at home. Confident that our business men have been more than equal to that duty, we "unprecedentedly" would cordially invite all our citizens to call at the office, southeast corner of Main and Wisconsin streets, and examine for themselves.

S. S. DAGGETT, President.

A. W. KELLER, Secretary.

W. M. PRILEY & HARLOW, produce dealers, and Capt. Geo. S. Dodge will receive applications for insurance in this home company, and will also be happy to give information as to the conditions thereof, to any one desirous of being informed, in Janesville.

COMMERCIAL.

Janesville Wholesale Market.

Reported for the Janesville Gazette, by BUMP & GRAY, GRAIN AND PRODUCE DEALERS.

JANESVILLE, AUGUST 6, 1890.

Owing to a light supply of wheat and flour there is a good demand for choice samples of spring wheat to mill. We note sales of one lot, delivered at 1.00 per bushel, and also one or two lots delivered during the week at the same figure. No shipping demand at over 50c per bushel. Corn is also in demand, and prices have advanced fully 10c to 15c; owing to short supply a good article would sell readily at 40c. Oats may be quoted 10c higher, with good demand; we note sales at 22c small oats at 22c per bushel. The farmers are only about half through with their harvesting yet, consequently we look for but little grain in the market for the next fifteen days. Excursion to Green Bay.

Last Thursday, the contemplated excursion of the grain buyers and millers of this city to Oshkosh and Green Bay took place. This class of business men were not, however, as fully represented as there was reason to believe it would be, and the excursionists, over twenty in number, accompanied by the band led by Mr. Samuel Clement, embraced several other business professions. Leaving the Janesville depot at 2 o'clock, in a car especially assigned to the excursionists, and under the particular charge of Mr. H. E. Pattison, the well-known agent of the Chicago and Northwestern road, the city of Oshkosh was reached "on time," without other than the usual incidents connected with a regular trip over the road. The harvest fields on the route universally exhibited that abundance and promise which characterise our own vicinity, though there is an evident difference in the progress made in securing the crop. Rock county is fully a week in advance of Fond du Lac and Winnebago. Most of the cutting is done with the cradle, as the timbered country is reached, and a much larger quantity of grain is lodged, even in Jefferson county, than in Rock. There is, however, everywhere a uniform testimony as to the quality and yield. Never before has Wisconsin been so bountifully blessed with the richest products of the soil.

At Oshkosh, the excursion party, led by their band, numbering nine instruments, proceeded to the Adams House, where accommodations had been secured by E. J. Cuyler, the present agent of the road at that place, and where ample preparations had been made for their entertainment. A variety of comments and speculations as to the origin, object and destination of the party were made, as it marched from the depot to the Adams, and the music drew to the street a crowd of spectators. Some supposed it was a disguised band of Wide Awakes, ready for an onslaught upon the democracy of the town. Others feared it was a hostile military demonstration upon the peace and safety of the city. Some asserted that the spirit of the old chief whose name the city bears, and whose domain the white man had invaded, had assumed a new shape and had come to avenge the wrongs inflicted upon himself and his race. A satisfactory solution of the mystery was soon given, and a friendly reception followed.

After such a demonstration upon a well-supplied supper table as a hungry company only can make, a general serenade was arranged, in which the press was not overlooked. The residences of Mr. Leavett of the Northwestern and Mr. Strong of the Courier were visited, and the distance from the city of the dwelling of Mr. Gary of the Democrat alone prevented a call upon him. One peculiarity of these Oshkosh printers struck us forcibly. They all live in good houses, much better than most of their brethren, and as printers are proverbially honest and never indulge in a homestead display at the expense of their creditors, we infer printing is a good business at Oshkosh. Several incidents connected with this serenade, which we have no room to narrate, may be learned by application to any of the party present.

Having engaged the Berlin City for a trip to "the Bay" and back, the next morning found the excursionists in the full enjoyment of a sail through Lake Winnebago. Whether there had been unusual good luck in the selection of a boat for this part of the excursion, we do not know; but certain it is, the Berlin and its captain, John Lynch, and all its officers, soon established themselves in the good will of those who had secured its and their services. Ed. Phinney seemed very successful in creating an impression that he was peculiarly well qualified for his specific duties, this good will found expression in a meeting of the excursionists on their return to Oshkosh in the series of resolutions we publish elsewhere.

A two hours ride brought the party to Menasha, where they came to the Fox River Improvement. Very many well-informed residents of Wisconsin, we are confident, have no adequate idea of the nature, the extent, the value, or the capacity of this improvement; indeed, we believe a very general ignorance exists in many parts of the State in relation to it. In noting some of its principal features and giving a general description of what fell under our observation, we by no means intend to write for the benefit of those who have visited it or are familiar with it. If we succeed in imparting some information to those who are as little acquainted with it as we were ourselves previous to this excursion, and that will lead to a better knowledge of its character and appreciation of its importance, our object will be accomplished.

As we have stated, we came upon the improvement first at Menasha. From this point to Green Bay, a distance of 35 miles, there is a fall in the river of 174 feet in a succession of rapids at various places. The improvement mainly consists in avoiding these rapids by canals and locks. Between Menasha and Green Bay are 18 locks, 160 by 36 feet. With two exceptions, these locks are built of wood, and are now answering a temporary purpose. Much of the work on the canals is also temporary; but both the locks and canals will be rebuilt and work of a permanent character substituted. Not the least value of this improvement (for which it will be remembered, a large grant of land was donated by congress, and which was made over by the state to a company to construct the improvement) is the water power afforded by it, and which may, with propriety, be styled limitless. The value of a portion of this power to other parts of the state destitute of such an aid, would be incalculable, and the towns now growing upon it are but the germs of cities that will rival the largest manufacturing localities of New England. As a channel of commerce, too, it possesses not only a present value, but a prospective importance difficult to over-estimate to that section of the state where it is so fortunately located. We have no statistics as to the amount of commerce now tributary to this commercial highway, and if we had, it would divert us from the object of this article (which is merely some notes of a pleasure excursion) to enlarge upon them. Our object will be best accomplished by returning to the point of digression, and resuming the narrative of events as they occurred, and sticking to the "notes" in our diary, which, by the way, are more plentiful than the notes in our pocket book—especially after the call for a settlement at the captain's office.

Menasha is a prosperous, pleasant town, and is indebted for its prosperity to "the improvement." A canal a half mile long leads from the lake into the river through a lock overcoming a fall of ten feet. Along this canal are several extensive manufacturing establishments and warehouses. While the good "Berlin" was making its landings, several of the excursionists visited the mill factory of Morey & Smith. This factory, by the aid of its expensive machinery, manufactures 1000 pairs of boots from 125 tubs daily, and from 500 to 600 dozen chairs, and 400 dozen half bushel measures a year, with a variety of other wooden ware. About 100 workmen are usually employed. Conspicuous among the buildings of Menasha is a school house, built at a cost of $4000, which for size, beauty of architecture and location is a model for imitation. In the immediate vicinity of Menasha is Doty's Island, which has a state college, and the old Indian settlement of the Doty, ("hill of the dead"), where Gen. Cass made his treaty with the Menomonees in 1827, and where earlier treaties with "the red man" were made.

At Appleton, a few miles below, the boat leaves the river and enters a canal 1/2 mile in length, then finds the river, and again enters a canal 1/2 of a mile in length. These canals, as at Menasha, afford a water power that is the basis of wealth and growth. In this distance of a mile, there is a fall of 49 feet, overcome by 4 locks. On the banks of these canals are scattered several manufacturing establishments, including 4 flouring mills, a paper mill, a barrel factory and a spoke and hub manufactory. The barrel and the spoke and hub factories we found time to visit. The former, owned by Dunn & Brewster, is now making 700 barrels a day, running day and night, and employing 50 men. By the aid of machinery which groves and changes the stave without setting up the barrel, the proprietors ship in bulk at a large saving in the expense of freight, and supply distant markets. The wheel factory of J. M. Stebbins & Co., manufactures on ten hours work from 500 to 600 spokes and 30 sets of hubs a day. We noticed on the dock bundles of these spokes and hubs marked for Kansas and Oregon.

Appleton is built mainly on the north side of the river, which is crossed by two bridges. The river above and below the town has a scenery of rare beauty, and the town itself is reputed to be one of the pleasantest in the state. The college, a fine building, on a commanding location, is in full view from the river. Gov. Seymour, of New York, one of the stockholders in the improvement company, is a large owner of property about the village. Here, the excursionists received a pleasant accession in a delegation from Portage City, (among whom was Mr. McCulloch, formerly a resident of this city), who were making an examination of the entire improvement in order to report upon the practicability of a regular steamboat communication between that city and Green Bay. They were satisfied of the feasibility of the project and sanguine of making arrangements to accomplish that result.

The next point of interest is Little Chute, where another canal of a mile in length and 4 locks avoids a fall of 40 feet in the river. This point is one of special historic interest, as one of the earliest stations of the Jesuit missionary fathers. Few travelers pass it without visiting the church built in 1833 for the German Catholics. This church is constructed in the form of a cross, and its primitive simplicity contrasts strongly with the religious edifices of more modern days. On the opposite side of the river, and a little below, is another relic of the early days of Wisconsin, in the trading post of D. M. Whitney, of Green Bay. The old trading house itself has fallen into decay, but two or three buildings connected with it still exist somewhat in the state in which they were occupied by the traders who bartered with the natives of the country.

Passing down the river, Grand Kaukauna next attracts attention. Here is another canal, 1 1/2 miles long, and 5 locks, overcoming a fall of 53 feet. [At this place, Isaac Woodie took possession of our note book and on its return, we found the following entry: "Adjacent thereto is a sulphur spring originally discovered by the Indians in the year 422, and analysed by H. S. Shelton in the year 1860, by whom it was discovered that the spring contained 14 parts water, 3 parts sulphurated hydro-gas, 3 parts common gas, 6 parts rotten eggs, 10 parts decomposed animal matter and 1 part mud. The locks can be opened by a night key, in which there are two invented by Morgan L. Martin, and are now in the possession of Horatio Seymour for the benefit of the stockholders."]

As a faithful chronicler we feel compelled to give this record publicly, for Isaac tried a bottle of the water brought from the spring, and knows as much about the history of "the improvement" as a good many others.

At Rapid de Croche is a specimen of the permanent work contemplated by the improvement company. A canal 1/2 of a mile long, with a surface of 80 feet, and a depth of 7 feet, a sloped stone wall of 10 feet high, and a dressed stone lock, well constructed, is seen. The cost of this portion of the improvement was $28,000. Leaving Rapid de Croche, we next arrive at Little Kaukauna. Here is the most costly dam on the improvement. It has a fall of 9 feet, a canal of 2000 feet, and a lock, together costing $42,000.

Deperre, 6 miles above Green Bay, is another of the towns to which the improvement has given activity and prosperity. Here is a dam purchased for private hands by the company, and a lock. A large quantity of lumber is manufactured, and Messrs. Bickford & Bickford have an extensive man-chine shop, in which has been built during the last season a fine steamboat 120 by 33 feet for D. M. Loy of Green Bay. The arrangements desired by the Portage people contemplate the employment of this boat between Green Bay and that city. Messrs. Elmes & Bickford are engaged in the manufacture of quartz crushers, for which they claim a superiority over any other kind. They build sizes varying in weight from 2500 to 7000 lbs, and from 4 to 12 crushers. The cost ranges from $500 to $1200, according to the size and number of crushers.

The river at Deperre widens into a bay, and the point of destination is seen in the distance. A short time brought the Berlin alongside the dock, and a line of march, preceded by the music, was taken for the United States Hotel. Our visit was as much a surprise here as at Oshkosh, and for aught the good people of "the Bay" knew, Uncle Sam had made a sudden descent upon the deserted fort so intimately connected with the history of the state, and was again to fill its barracks with soldiers and enliven the town with the chirality of the regular army. The time devoted to the visit was too limited for a satisfactory examination of the city, (for Green Bay rejoices in a charter and a full array of aldermen,) or any of its time-consecrated localities. Whatever there was of a personal nature worth recording, Charley Robinson must write from a report furnished by Frank Desnoyer. Generally, we acknowledge attentions from a host of good fellows, and the reception of a compliment from a Young America on the dock as we left that "this was the second cruise that ever visited Green Bay."

A night ride upon the river brought us to Oshkosh in season for the morning train to Janesville, where we arrived Saturday afternoon, none the worse for wear, and feeling a good deal better for the unalloyed enjoyment all had received.

We find our notice of this excursion has extended to such a length that we are compelled to abridge the close, and omit or postpone the proceedings of the meeting on the Berlin City on its return to Oshkosh. A committee was appointed to draft resolutions of thanks to Mr. Patterson, to Capt. Lynch, and a recommendation to future excursionists to engage the Berlin City. Each of these propositions are eminently "sound," and received the hearty approval of every member of the meeting.

A MEMORIAL.—We are indebted to Fred Clarke, one of the excursionists to Green Bay, for an acceptable relic from old Fort Howard. While we were enjoying an agreeable interview with Judge Baird, Fred was exploring the recesses of the fort, and brought out from its hidden treasures a memento of the olden time, and made us the depository of the relic. A fear that the general government may commence a suit against Fred, through its unparalleled marshal, John H. Lewis, prevents a more specific acknowledgment of the gift.

RAILROAD FREIGHTS.—The railroad freights between the seaboard cities and the west are ruinously low. A sample of the manner with which rates are being cut may be gleaned from the fact that the present advertised rates between New York and the east are per 100 lbs $1.70, on first class freights, while contracts, says the Chicago Herald, are daily being made at 70c. The rates on the same class of freights between Chicago and New York are $1.60 per 100 lbs, but freights are taken at 60c; second and third class freights are taken at 10c per 100 lbs, less.

All but seven of the ninety-three boys who escaped from the Western House of Refuge, at Rochester, N. Y., have been recaptured. Lake George, doubtless, feels honored by the fact that Baron Rothschild, of Paris, whose income is 16,000,000 francs a year, is sojourning on her banks. With his suit of ten "people" he is making a tour of our watering places.

The thermometer Thursday stood 104 at St. Joseph Mo. The Charleston Mercury proposes to the owners of the Great Eastern to go into the slave trade. "Ten thousand negroes at a trip, only think of it!" The Mercury's imagination is up to fever heat. The speeches made by the Prince of Wales are said to be written by one of his suites, the Duke of Newcastle. The young eagle of royalty reads them from a manuscript handed to him.

The journals in Tennessee are nearly all for Breckinridge. The Knoxville Register says: "From every quarter of East Tennessee, the democratic masses are announcing their determination to support the ticket. No dissenting voice has yet been heard."

THE BOOTH MATTER.—The Milwaukee Sentinel says that state Commissioner Heg has received a requisition from Jehu H. Lewis, United States Marshal, informing him that he understood Booth was concealed within the walls of the prison, and requiring him to employ a police force in securing him to his custody. Mr. Heg replied that Mr. Booth was not concealed about the prison—that he was visiting his family, and was at liberty to go whence he pleased. As to employing his police force, they were more honorably and profitably employed.

The troubles at Occoquan, Va., happily terminated without bloodshed. The result can in no wise injure the republican party. It is but another of the many instances of Pro-Slavery intolerance, and will only go to aid in recruiting the great republican party against the slave power of the South. The failure of the authorities of Virginia to protect the town from attack, after the promise of Gov. Letcher to do so, will indicate how petty mockery has taken possession of the ancient commonwealth.

The returns of the census of Wood county, Va., shows a heavy falling off in the slave population; and we now have the census of Cabell county, which shows only 210 slaves and 10 free negroes against 389 slaves and 8 free negroes in 1850.

Taxation and Education—No 3.

Shall we diffuse intelligence through the medium of the taxing power? That is, shall we sustain free schools? It can hardly be necessary, it would seem, to offer a word on this subject. Did we know certainly that any one objected to this principle on a professedly substantial basis, we might and would urge many reasons in support of it. As it is, I shall say but little; for any objection founded merely in selfishness, or resting on any false notion of aristocracy,—on the idea, for instance, that the young scions of upper-tendency would be degraded by seeking for knowledge at the common fountain, side by side with the children of the so-called middle and lower classes,—any objection of this character would be unworthy a moment's notice.

There is one view of our subject that should be carefully considered. Every taxpayer in the land is under a binding obligation to contribute to the support of the government under which he lives. There can be no dodging this responsibility. If money is required for the erection and management of jails, prisons, houses of refuge, &c., no objection is interposed—pecuniary aid is freely rendered in such cases. Now it is probably true, that if school houses and thoroughly qualified teachers were multiplied throughout the length and breadth of the land, there would not be so loud a call for money with which to build prisons and jails. It should be put to the common sense and the benevolent feeling of the taxpayers, whether it is not indeed better policy, and more accordant with the moral and religious sentiment of the human heart, to build and endow houses of prevention than houses of correction, for the one or the other we must have; and as we multiply the former, there will be less occasion for the latter.

It will be seen, of course, that my argument is based on the supposition that education will contribute to the promotion of moral goodness—to virtue, both in public and in private life. With the growth of the intellect the moral powers of the soul should keep pace. Physically, intellectually, and morally, should our children be educated. Means to this end should be provided by the state or by municipal regulation.—Let our schools be the nurseries of intelligence and virtue, and let them be free to all classes of the community.

Frequently, in our large towns and cities, vagrant children are to be met with.—Which is best—to pay largely for the evils which they will entail upon society,—or to educate, train or mature them, intellectually and morally, thus fitting them in a good degree to become worthy and useful men and women? But one answer could reasonably be given. All true and unselfish hearts would be a unit in this grand purpose of intellectual and moral culture. If there is any one thing of which Wisconsin as a state may feel justly proud, it is her glorious system of public instruction.

After years of reproach, anxiety and toil, we succeeded in this city in adopting an admirable system of free schools, providing for a thorough academic course. Our plan has worked well, and has been generally, perhaps I should say universally approved by our citizens. Shall it ever be sacrificed to cupidity and selfishness? I trust not. Let our public schools be suspended even for one year, and the evils resulting would be incalculable. Let the people look to this matter in sober earnest. If there can be retrenchment and reform in any particular, let us have them. But let no ruth, less hand be put forth to paralyze or destroy the system itself. Should such an attempt be made, may the hand be suddenly stayed in its evil work—as suddenly as the hand of a city father was stayed recently in our common council, through his "sober second thought," induced by the potent fact that "two-thirds of the property holders of the city had remonstrated with him against reducing the school fund." Had he consulted the remaining third, he would have found them of like mind.

A MURDERER AT LARGE.—We publish in our advertising columns to-day the reward offered for the apprehension of "Lant" McComb for the murder of Laura Harvey and George Lawrence. There is also in this advertisement a minute description of the murderer. The remains of Lawrence were found in a ravine on the 28th of July, near Ottumwa, Iowa, where the murders were committed, and were fully identified. McComb, it appears, has been traced into this state, and it is more than probable that he is now secreted by some of the gang to which he belongs, and which are supposed to be located in various places throughout the northwest. It will be remembered that Mayberry, after he had murdered Alger, went immediately to old McComb's, near Rockford, where he had been harboring, and that this "Lant" McComb was a witness at the trial in this city. It was believed, at the time, that the McCombs were a part of the gang of horse-thieves and robbers which infested this region, and that Mayberry was exposed only because they feared to protect him. The recent double murder by "Lant" McComb confirms the suspicions which were then abroad in relation to him, and we hope every effort will be made to apprehend him and bring him to punishment.

For Springfield.—The price of tickets for the trip to Springfield and back to Janesville will be $6.00. For a package of fifty tickets the charge will be $5.00 each. Cars will leave Chicago for Springfield to-morrow evening at 9 o'clock. This will be a favorable opportunity for such as desire to participate in the great mass meeting at "the home of old Abe," and we hope a large number will attend from this region.

THE COMING NOVELTY.—From every direction we hear of preparations being made, not only in Wisconsin, but in other states, for a large attendance at the National Horse Show and Ladies' Equestrian Fair, to be held in this city in September next. If the press is any indication of the disposition and interest of the public, we look for the largest crowd of people, on that occasion, ever assembled in the north-west. From its inception to the present time, these enterprising managers of the coming Fair have been busy in making ample arrangements for the accommodation of the expected assemblage. The Fair grounds are being refitted. The track is graded and now ready for use, and all other accommodations essential to its perfect success, of this the first fair of its kind ever held in our state, will be brought into requisition. As the time approaches the interest in this national exhibition increases, and we confidently expect the fastest and finest horses of the land will be here, with the beauty and chivalry of the country, to grace the occasion.

Rock River Engine Co. No. 1.—The regular monthly meeting of this company will be held at their hall this evening, at 8 o'clock. By order of G. S. STRASBERGER, Foreman. S. FORD, Jr., Acting Secy.

WARM!—At 4 o'clock this afternoon the thermometer stood at 98° in the shade.—That's what we call some warm.

Life Insurance.—Those desiring this safe and cheapest protection for their families, can secure it in our Wisconsin company. It has already become, in reality, a state institution, having agents and patrons among the best business men in all the principal towns in the state. It is no longer a matter of doubt that life insurance can be conducted as well in Wisconsin as in Connecticut or any other eastern state.

While daily demands that men should insure their lives, it also demands that they should keep their money for investment at home. Confident that our success has been more than equal to that of the most "unprecedented," we would cordially invite all our citizens to call at the office, southeast corner of Main and Wisconsin streets, and examine for themselves.

S. S. DAGGETT, President.

A. W. KELLON, Secretary.

Wm. J. Rice & Co., Hardware, Groceries, Dealers, and Capt. Geo. S. Dodge will receive applications for insurance in this home company, and will also be happy to give information as to the conditions and terms, to any one desiring of being insured, in Janesville.

Taxation and Education—No. 3.

Shall we diffuse intelligence through the medium of the taxing power? That is, shall we sustain free schools? It can hardly be necessary, it would seem, to offer a word on this subject. Did we know certainly that any one objected to this principle on a professedly substantial basis, we might and would urge many reasons in support of it. As it is, I shall say but little; for any objection founded merely in selfishness, or resting on any false notion of aristocracy, or on the idea, for instance, that the young scenes of upper-tendency would be degraded by seeking for knowledge at the common fount, side by side with the children of the so-called middle and lower classes,—any objection of this character would be unworthy a moment's notice.

There is one view of our subject that should be carefully considered. Every taxpayer in the land is under a binding obligation to contribute to the support of the government under which he lives. There can be no dodging this responsibility. If money is required for the erection and maintenance of jails, prisons, houses of refuge, &c., no objection is interposed—pecuniary aid is freely rendered in such cases. Now it is probably true, that if school houses and thoroughly qualified teachers were multiplied throughout the length and breadth of the land, there would not be so loud a call for money with which to build prisons and jails. It should be put to the common sense and the benevolent feeling of the taxpayers, whether it is not indeed better policy, and more accordant with the moral and religious sentiment of the human heart, to build and endow houses of prevention than houses of correction, for the one or the other we must have; and as we multiply the former, there will be less occasion for the latter.

It will be seen, of course, that my argument is based on the supposition that education will contribute to the promotion of moral goodness—to virtue, both in public and in private life. With the growth of the intellect the moral powers of the soul should keep pace. Physically, intellectually, and morally, should our children be educated. Means to this end should be provided by the state or by municipal regulation.—Let our schools be the nurseries of intelligence and virtue, and let them be free to all classes of the community.

Frequently, in our large towns and cities, vagrant children are to be met with.—Which is best—to pay largely for the evil which they will entail upon society,—or to educate, train or mature them, intellectually and morally, thus fitting them in a good degree to become worthy and useful men and women? But one answer could reasonably be given. All true and unselfish hearts would be a unit in this grand purpose of intellectual and moral culture. If there is any one thing which Wisconsin as a state may feel justly proud, it is her glorious system of public instruction.

After years of reproach, anxiety and toil, we succeeded in this city in adopting an admirable system of free schools, providing for a thorough academic course. Our plan has worked well, and has been generally, perhaps I should say universally approved by our citizens. Shall it ever be sacrificed to cupidity and selfishness? I trust not. Let our public schools be suspended even for one year, and the evils resulting would be incalculable. Let the people look to this matter in sober earnest. If there can be retrenchment and reform in any particular, let us have them. But let no ruth, less hand be put forth to paralyze or destroy the system itself. Should such an attempt be made, may the hand be suddenly stayed in its evil work—as suddenly as the hand of a city father was stayed recently in our common council, through his "sober second thought," induced by the potent fact that "two-thirds of the property holders of the city had remonstrated with him against reducing the school fund." Had he consulted the remaining third, he would have found them of like mind.

A MURDERER AT LARGE.—We publish in our advertising columns to-day the reward offered for the apprehension of "Lani" McComb for the murder of Laura Harvey and George Lawrence. There is also in this advertisement a minute description of the murderer. The remains of Lawrence were found in a ravine on the 28th of July, near Ottumwa, Iowa, where the murders were committed, and were fully identified. McComb, it appears, has been traced into this city, and it is more than probable that he is now secured by some of the gang to which he belongs, and which are supposed to be located in various places throughout the northwest. It will be remembered that Mayberry, after he had murdered Alger, went immediately to old McComb's, near Rockford, where he had been harboring, and that this "Lani" McComb was a witness at the trial in this city. It was believed, at the time, that the McCombs were a part of the gang of horse-thieves and robbers which infested this region, and that Mayberry was exposed only because they feared to protect him. The recent double murder by "Lani" McComb confirms the suspicions which were then abroad in relation to him, and we hope every effort will be made to apprehend him and bring him to punishment.

For SPRINGFIELD.—The price of tickets for the trip to Springfield and back to Janesville will be $6.00. For a package of fifty tickets the charge will be $5.00 each. Cars will leave Chicago for Springfield to-morrow evening at 8 o'clock. This will be a favorable opportunity for such as desire to participate in the great mass meeting at "the home of old Abe," and we hope a large number will attend from this region.

This is the hottest day of the season. The mercury stands at 98° in the shade.

THE COMING NOVELTY.—From every direction we hear of preparations being made, not only in Wisconsin, but in other states, for a large attendance at the National Horse Show and Ladies' Equestrian Fair, to be held in this city in September next. If the press is any indication of the disposition and interest of the public, we look for the largest crowd of people, on that occasion, ever assembled in the north west. From its inception to the present time, these enterprising managers of the coming Fair have been busy in making ample arrangements for the accommodation of the expected assemblage. The Fair grounds are being refitted. The track is graded and now ready for use, and all other accommodations essential to its perfect success, of this the first fair of its kind ever held in our state, will be brought into requisition. As the time approaches the interest in this national exhibition increases, and we confidently expect the fastest and finest horses of the land will be here, with the beauty and chivalry of the country, to grace the occasion.

Rock River Engine Co. No. 1.—The regular monthly meeting of this company will be held at their hall this evening, at 8 o'clock. By order of G. S. STRASBERGER, Foreman. S. FORD, Jr., Acting Sec'y.

WARM.—At 4 o'clock this afternoon the thermometer stood at 98° in the shade.—That's what we call some warm.

Life Insurance.—Those desiring this safest and cheapest protection for their families, can secure it in our Wisconsin company. It has already become, in reality, a state institution, having agents and patrons among the best business men in all the principal towns in the state. It is no longer a matter of doubt that life insurance can be conducted as well in Wisconsin as in Connecticut or any other eastern state.
